

Dear Hiring Manager,

With great mirth and jest, I send this letter to thee, To present my humble self, a security engineer of great degree. A knight of cyber security, I have battled with all my might, To protect networks and systems, day and night.

In this realm of technology, where threats are many, And data breaches are a bane, to every penny, I come before thee, to pledge my troth, To serve and safeguard, with honesty and truth.

With a hand as swift as mercury, and a mind as sharp as steel, I have tackled many challenges, with a heart of zeal. I have traversed firewalls, with ease and flair, And defeated malware, with a knightly air.

My armour of knowledge, is fashioned with care, In cryptography, coding and software repair, I have studied with masters, in every school, And honed my skills, to a razor's edge, so cool.

I am well versed in security, both application and web, And can protect them from attackers, who want to stab and nab, With skills of penetration testing, and code review, I can find every vulnerability, and make it anew.

So, if thou art seeking a security engineer, of great renown, Look no further, for thy search is done and done, I am ready to serve, with honour and might, And be thy trusted knight, in cyber security's fight.

With regards to thee, I await your response, And hope to be called, to join thy team of defence.

Yours truly,

Aaron Kingsley Clark